(1)

This organization was founded in 1948. It is the United Nations agency that connects nations, partners and people to promote health, keep the world safe and serve the vulnerable, that is, those who are not strong enough and are easily hurt – so that everyone, everywhere can attain the highest level of health.

This organization leads global efforts to expand universal health coverage. It directs and coordinates the world's response to health emergencies, for example, the epidemic of COVID-19. And it promotes healthier lives – from pregnancy care through old age. It has an ambitious plan for the world to achieve good health for all, using science-based policies and programmes. By connecting countries, people and partners, it strives to give everyone an equal chance to have a safe and healthy life. It brings together 194 countries to confront the biggest health challenges of our time and measurably advance the well-being of people worldwide.

(2) Judging from the two paragraphs above, underlined 'This organization' refers to (A). The organization was founded in order to promote (B). When people in any country in the world suffer from illness, especially infectious diseases (illnesses that can be passed on from a person to another person), it tries to help them confront the fears and dangers by (C) countries' efforts to overcome the difficult situation.
